

Alaska's Ballot Count Methods

Alaska uses three different methods to count ballots at the precinct level:

- ❖ Hand-count
- ❖ Optical Scan
- ❖ Touch Screen w/ voter verifiable paper trail.

Hand-count precincts are those precincts that are in rural areas of the state with few voters. After the polls close, the election boards tally the ballots using prepared tally books and then call in the results to the appropriate regional office. The regional offices then data enter the results into the election database and uploads the results to the statewide database in the Director's Office via modem connection. There are 137 hand-count precincts in Alaska.

Optical scan precincts are those in the urban areas of the state or those that have a large number of voters. After the voter votes, the voter inserts his/her ballot into the optical scan unit which is attached to a ballot box. When the polls close, the election board ends the election and transmits the results via a telephone line directly to the statewide election database in the Director's Office. There are 304 optical scan precincts in Alaska.

Touch screen units used in Alaska have a voter verifiable paper trail that allows the voter to verify the printed version of the ballot prior to casting the ballot. When voting on a touch screen, the voter has the option of having the ballot on the screen and/or listen to an audio version of the ballot and using a keypad to make the selection. Like the optical scan, when the polls close, the election board ends the election on the touch screen and then transmit results either via telephone line (for optical scan precincts) or by calling in the results to the regional office (for hand-count precincts).
