STATEMENT:

I support our Founding Fathers vision that the smallest government consistent with an organized society brings out the best in people. Personal freedom and government security are opposing forces with the result that the more you have of one, the less you have of the other. The emotional need for too much government security is so powerful that it has overwhelmed personal liberty in most of the world leaving misery, despotism and mediocrity in its wake. It took a brave group of men in 1776 to reverse that trend and create the most enlightened and prosperous country the world has ever seen. Faith, family, freedom, hard work and free market competition are the bedrocks that the American Dream is built on. Alaska with its vigorous population and unequaled natural resource stands on the doorstep to greatness. We need only remember that the source of economic prosperity is a free people dreaming big and then working hard to achieve those dreams-not the central planning of an ever expanding government bureaucracy. With the right leadership, Alaska can and will be the freest, the most prosperous, and self-sufficient of all the states in the union.
