STATEMENT:

There are two lasting gifts we leave our children: one is roots, the other is wings. Our roots bind us to our forefathers and to each other, instilling in us an abiding love for this country and the freedoms it ensures. Our Alaskan roots contain a special can-do attitude, strengthened by communities forged from hard-work, self-reliance, and shared respect. These simple values formed the pioneering spirit that settled this state. As a lifetime Alaskan and father of five, my roots and my love for Alaska run deep.

Wings speak to our dreams and our human potential, to our God-given gifts and our ability to nurture them and to pass them along in an effort to make the world a better place. To give our children wings require that we educate them, protect their freedoms, and provide them with the essential tools for economic prosperity.

To District 30, I represent the most conservative choice in this election. I have a 25-year record of creating jobs and building business opportunities for local residents. I have witnessed first-hand how government policies have a direct effect on private investment, job-creation, and creating incentives for individuals to take responsible business risks.

Alaskans desperately need Representatives in Juneau with successful records in the private sector creating jobs and building local economies. We need business leaders who know how to trim and balance budgets, who aren't afraid to make tough choices, and who insist on sustainable, economic solutions that don't saddle the next generation with unfunded debts.
