Leading by example is the hallmark of a good leader. The attributes of honesty, integrity, and transparency come to mind in regards to good political leadership. If elected to State House, in District 23, of the State of Alaska, I will lead by the attributes I have outlined above. I will also listen, be inclusive, and make decisions by consensus. In regards to the people of Alaska, many feel disenfranchised by the current behavior of politicians and reject or avoid the process of voting and participating in governance. I hope by leading by example, I can increase participation, involvement, and commitment to good governance among the people of Alaska. I further hope under my tender, I can bring back true Alaskan values such as trust, vision, and foresight for the future. Alaskan Republican leaders like Wally Hickel, Jay Hammond, and Ted Stevens come to mind when forming and achieving our goals for our future.
