Tim also competed in cross country skiing and earned a state title in Academic Decathlon two years running. He was honored to be part of the team that represented Alaska at the National Academic Decathlon competition in Chicago, 1995.

Statement:

As a center-right independent, I have the freedom to do what is right "for the good of the people as a whole." (Article 1, Section 2 - Alaska State Constitution) I am not constrained by a party platform, which leaves me free to blend the best ideas from the Right and the Left.

As a lifelong Alaskan, I am committed to building a framework for a sustainable budget, and ending the boom-bust cycle of our dependence on oil revenue. I will tirelessly promote my balanced plan of spending cuts and revenue increases towards that end.

I will fight to increase Alaskans' access to our public lands, responsibly develop our resources and diversify our economy.

I will defend the privilege of legal access to cannabis and the right to keep and bear arms.

I knock on a lot of doors, and one gentleman asked me what my campaign promises were. I had no answer for him, so I went home and wrote some down. I submit them here for your consideration:

I promise to do what I reason is right for our state and our district.

I promise to work with both sides on every issue, in the hope of finding a solution that leaves them both equally disappointed.

I promise to seek no more than two terms in the Senate, and I promise to never let a lobbyist buy me dinner.
