STATEMENT:

Raised in Nikiski, Ben served 13 years on active duty with the USAF and USA, with six deployments to the Middle East. He retired from the Alaska Army National Guard after 21 years of military service. Ben has proudly represented District 8 in the State House for six years.

Married 29 years, Ben and Ameye are blessed with four children and 3 grandchildren. They own and operate a commercial peony farm in Nikiski and lead a farmer's co-op. Ben and Ameye are active in 4-H and their local church. As precious time allows, Ben enjoys shooting and motorized sports, and walks on the beach hunting agates.

Ben has consistently advocated for a long-term fiscal plan that prioritizes economic growth. The disconnect between our economy and the budget is real and costly! We can fix it by changing our spending and revenue structures so legislators care about economic growth.

Abundant supplies of natural gas and coal are both reliable and cost-effective, but regulations have made them less so. Our capacity for hydroelectric and geothermal power is underdeveloped. We need a realistic energy policy that corrects these oversights. Developing reliable and cost-effective energy will provide jobs and economic growth.

Our schools are critical to economic growth, and they are in disarray. Parents need control and responsibility over the classroom. Our charter schools are modeling exactly how to do this with success. We need to duplicate what works. Teachers will be better supported when parents have responsibility for the outcomes of our schools.
