Position Statement

I'm Jared Goecker, running for Alaska State Senate representing Chugiak-Eagle River. My connection to Alaska began at eight years old when my family moved to Eagle River after my father was stationed at Elmendorf Air Force Base. This state has always felt like home, and after college, I returned with my wife, Larissa. We welcomed our son, Noah, last year, and my immediate family joined us in 2017.

With years of leadership in government administration, management and civic engagement I bring a unique blend of integrity, strategic leadership, and a proven ability to deliver results. My experience negotiating labor contracts involved confronting powerful interests and advocating for accountability, showcasing my commitment to effective governance. Additionally, as Deputy Director of Human Resources, I led initiatives that streamlined operations and improved staffing levels.

Tragically, my brother was murdered by a career criminal last October. This personal loss has underscored Alaska's urgent need for reform our criminal justice system, and it drives me to seek meaningful change. The issues facing our state are clear: a struggling economy, threat of new taxes, and a broken criminal justice system. These challenges demand action.

I am committed to addressing these issues head-on, fostering a safer and more prosperous Alaska without resorting to burdensome taxation. My goal is to bring efficient, results-oriented leadership to the State Senate, ensuring our government serves the people effectively. Together, we can build a brighter future for Alaska, grounded in integrity, efficiency, and a deep commitment to our communities.
