Alaskan Communities Lived in:

Anchorage

Other (Biographical Information):

I am Aimee Sims. My grandparents moved to Alaska shortly after World War II, seeking new opportunities for their growing families. This heritage has given me a unique perspective on life in "The Great Land."

I have lived in Northeast Anchorage since 1987. After earning my bachelor's degree and teaching certificate, I couldn't wait to return to Anchorage and begin my teaching career. My husband, Matt, and I have been married twenty-six years, and have four children. Two of our children are currently serving in the military, one graduated from high school in May, our youngest is a senior this coming school year.

Balancing the roles of wife and mother, I have continued working as a public school teacher, serving in my church, and volunteering in my community. I am grateful for my friends and neighbors and am excited to serve our community in Juneau.

Position Statement

Our community and state are facing significant issues. Over the past few years, I have become more involved with my Northeast Anchorage community. I have spoken with many of my neighbors who, like me, are frustrated with the current direction we are heading. We share concerns about providing for our families, living in safe neighborhoods, and ensuring our children receive the best education to prepare them for success in life. These concerns are a recurring theme in most election cycles. We all want our families, children, and community to thrive.

I am honored to run to represent my neighbors in House District 21. I will not only listen to your concerns but will take them to Juneau and work to find common-sense solutions that allow our families to thrive in our great state. I will fight to maintain a balanced budget that does not compromise our Permanent Fund, supports reliable infrastructure, advocates for responsible natural resource development, prioritizes education, and ensures public safety while addressing root causes.

My experience includes serving as president of my condominium homeowners association, sitting on the board for my kids' swim club, volunteering in my church teaching Sunday School, and organizing women's conferences and volunteering at The Hope Center. I have also been involved in the therapeutic foster care system in Anchorage.
