Position Statement:
The future of Alaska is at a crossroads. Will we continue to tread the same paths that lead us here, or will we instead forge a new path? I am a new leader, with a vision of economic diversity and strong community bonds.

Our communities and people are strong, we have everything we need to face this economic crisis and come out more nimble, creative, and powerful. We have the imagination and fortitude to solve our looming problems as long as we cooperate for the greater good.

We need to protect education. Our future and current generations possess unlimited potential and rely on access to quality education. Our schools and educators need support, including stable funding.

We care about each other. That’s why we need to bravely confront the violence and crime plaguing our communities. Our law enforcement and our communities need our support. We’ve been promised federal money to help our staggering crime rates, but we must elect legislators who are transparent, so we know and have input on where that money is spent.

Alaska has abundant resources that need to be developed responsibly. We need to employ Alaskans who care about the home that they hold dear. I will fight hard to keep jobs in Alaska, and keep our people working.

It is essential to keep our money within Alaska, to build our State’s strength and financial stability. Outside contracts, outside corporations, and outside interests do not care about Alaska, but we do.

The Future is Alaskan.
